From my hole in the wall...
By Chucky Church Mouse

Well...my fat little tummy is beginning to get over Thanksgiving and Christmas. I don't know why, but every year I say that I am not going to gain an ounce during the holidays...but this year I gained 3 ounces! It was all those leftovers you human-types left in the dumpster...and Grandma Mouse's famous Mouse Cheesy Leftover Surprise...It is the best. I hope your holidays were great. Spending time with family and friends, and most of all, celebrating the greatest gift of all...Jesus!

Just the other day, I was thinking about the Great Commission... I heard my favorite preacher, John McMouser preaching about it. Did you know that when it says go, it also means "as you go". So it means that as we live our lives, we are supposed to make disciples.

Some of you are teachers, coaches, choir teachers, nurses, special education teachers, teacher's aides, and all kinds of other workers in the schools. Thanks for "letting your light shine" every day as you serve the Lord in your job. Some of you have jobs in offices, medical offices and labs, nursing homes and hospitals; you touch people every day. Thanks for being the "salt" that is needed in this world. Some of you work in construction, maintenance, and hard labor. Thanks for "building bridges" every day for folks to come to know the Lord. Some are retired, but you have never retired from serving God in the church, nursing homes, and in the community. Some of our folks have even helped out other churches that needed their talents and abilities. I am so proud to know so many people who share Jesus every day.

We are God's church, the body of Christ. We are given the commission to spread the good news of Jesus every day "as we go". So I hope you have a great week, but don't forget who should go with you "as you go."

I'll see you next week...Hey! Bring someone with you.
