From my hole in the wall...

By Chucky Church Mouse

Oh my mouse-ness! I am so-o-o tired. Last Saturday I must have dodged over six hundred feet moving all over the place. It was the Upward Basketball barbecue and awards night. Matt was the head "upward guy" this year...and he did a great job. He, Jack Robertson and Dave Thrane oversaw the whole thing...along with about 100 others who made the season all work together...And the Whiteheads' barbecue made the evening a mouse-top experience!

I love Upward...I especially enjoy watching the kindergarteners and first graders. The enthusiasm is unsurpassed. When one shoots a basket and gets it, they all give high-fives, hugs and even chest bumps. One got so excited that he knocked the other one down, and another ran all the way across court to high-five her coach.

I noticed that when one falls and hurts his or her knee...or pride, the coaches come over and console him or her...before you know it, they are back in the game playing as if nothing ever happened. I thought it was great that when the whistle blew for a foul or something, the coaches and/or referees helped the little human-types to understand what happened so that they can avoid doing that again. There is so much excitement as the crowd...mostly parents, family and close friends...cheers the players on, encouraging them to give it their best.

You know...that is the way a church should be. We should play our part with enthusiasm. And when we fall down...which we probably will...someone should be there to comfort us and encourage us to get up and keep on going. Mentors and disciplers should be ready to lovingly help people to stay on the right course. Hugs, shoulder taps, chest bumps...well, maybe not the chest bumps...and words of encouragement should be the habit.

I can't wait 'til next year's Upward Basketball season. But...you know...we can do all that stuff year 'round. When you are hurt, get up and go again, always ready to give someone else a hand up. And don't forget the crowd of witnesses who help us to keep on by their cheers. I'll be cheering for you. You do the same for others. Before you know it, there will be so much enthusiasm that people can't wait to "get in the game."

I'm glad you are here. Next time bring someone with you. Hey! Do something good for someone this week!
